Whenever I edit the data using an input element, the changes are not reflected in the database without firing a webserver refresh. I have different functions that use the same entity: User update function, that updates the given user Task update function that updates the given task Comments update function that updates the given comment Other functions work fine, including saving, as they use different entities. The update function calls the entitymanager save method. I save the entity, using a session scoped manager, and a call to the backend every 200ms

```
User currentUser =
(User)FacesContext.getCurrentInstance().getExternalContext().getSessionMap().get("user"); Long uid = currentUser.getUid(); User user = userMang
