SabinDart also wrote a simple plugin pack for Paint.NET that includes: VectorMath VectorMath is a simple vector math plugin that changes the source image, rotation, scaling, or clipping without impacting the destination. ReMask Replaces a layer with transparency with a new image. Scale Saves layers as a smart pattern so they will still scale even after they are partially transparent. Image Info Can be used to get the image name, description, and color from the image that the layer is on. ImageInfo.src To get the image name, description, and color from an image. A: Photoshop's Layer Comps (It will work for anything that inherits from ICustomPreviewProvider, which is a lot of things. Photoshop's Layer Comps are used to create preview for layers. Any of those with a bounding box will be completely free from the bounding box of the layers input) Creates a dialog box that displays Layer Comps options. The dialog box includes the following controls: Selection Mode indicates the elements that are being modified (e.g., selection). On/Off provides layers or image objects that are being modified. Show Selected Layers, the list of selected layers, or the current preview states. List Enabled: The switch to turn on or off layer comps. Layer Options: Current layer comp options. Image Options: Current image options. Help Options CS6 and later: In the Image Info dialog box, click Layer Comps and then the Create Preview button. CS5: Create and open the Layer Comp preview. Or, here's the API: HRESULT ComputeLayerComp(LPCDLGTEMPLATE pDlgTemplate, LPCDLGCTRL pDlgCtrl, HWND hwndParent); Stuck looking for a tutorial on this? References: Sabrown100 Instruction page Sabrown100 on sourceforge.net Sabrown100 on github.com Seven American teenagers were killed and at least 19 were injured when a car bomb went off Tuesday near the University of Central Asia (UCA) in Uzbekistan. The school said on Twitter that the attack occurred in its campus in Tashkent, and CNN reported that the Ministry of Emergency Situations in Tashkent said the blast was caused by a bomb at the school cafeteria. The source of the explosion remains unclear, but the Eastern Partnership press service, a regional anti-corruption group that is financed by the EU and US, tweeted that the explosion "took place inside of the catering room of UCA culinary faculty on the first floor of the culinary faculty building." "The regional security service (ISN) has been informed of the incident and is investigating the case," the agency added. Three other vehicles targeted in the attack were "damaged," the agency reported, "including one of the vehicles of the National Liberation Front of Islamic Uzbekistan (JNBU) in the city of Andijan, one of the vehicles of the National Liberation Army of Islamic State of Iraq and Syria (JNSI) in the city of Farkhar, and one of the vehicles of the Islamic Party of Uzbekistan (API) in the village of Elavon." The students killed in the attack include 16-year-old Kamiar Ahmadinia, a student at the Central Asian University for Science and Technology, who was studying Engineering and
