Unlike the traditional linear painting techniques used with other image editing programs, Photoshop is a layered-based image creation and editing tool. The idea of layering comes from film editing where there's a frame upon frame, as in a video. In editing, a single frame can be seen through multiple photos (or multiple frames) in order to complete a story or timeline. In Photoshop, layering can be done with multiple layers such as a background layer, a layer that's to be added to the background layer or a layer that's to be altered. These layers can then be merged and the merge process can be undone or redone. Raster vs. Vector

Raster is an image made of small individual pixels while vector is an image made of lines. A vector is often used for fonts, logos, and graphics. Adobe's Photoshop has an "artboard" tool that allows you to use raster or vector images. If you use a raster image, once you hit the "artboard" button, an artboard is created and your image will be rasterized (that means pixelated into a raster). If you use a vector image, you will go to the "image" tool and choose "vector, no pattern." This will turn your image into vector (that means without pixels).

There's a difference between the two types of files. If you choose to use a raster image, the pixels of the image can be saved in any format of you have Photoshop. The pixels can also be made into a JPEG, a GIF or a TIFF. As long as the file is set as a raster image, it can be saved in any of these formats. If you choose vector, your file is only saved in the format that the program was created in. So if you were to save a raster image as a JPEG, that file would be saved as a

JPEG file. But the JPEG file might be filled with lots of white areas and not what you actually wanted. So if you want to create a JPEG file, you'd have to find a JPEG program to open the file and then modify it. If you save an image as a GIF, it's also a raster file. It doesn't have any special format. If you saved an image as a TIFF, that file is a raster file. It can be saved as a TIFF file. If

In this tutorial, we will show you how to make a photomontage and add a text to an image. Step 1: Open Photoshop CS5 First, open Photoshop Elements 14 and the image that you want to edit. Next, open the image that you want to edit in Photoshop CS5. In this tutorial, we will use the following image: Step 2: Apply Layers The first thing that you need to do before you start any editing is to create a new layer. This way, you can work on a separate layer and not have to worry about losing what you have already added if you mess up. Open the layer and use the pen tool (pencil tool) to create a new layer. Make sure that the layer is as large as the original image.

Step 3: Create a New Background Layer

Next, create a new background layer. Make sure to check the “background layer” box on the top right of the layers panel. Step 4: Add a Gradient Add a gradient to the new layer. Go to the “tools” tab and choose the “gradients” option. Next, select “linear gradient” as the gradient type. Click the “New stops” button and pick a gradient. Step 5: Change the Size of the Layer Change the size of the layer to 256 pixels. Step 6: Add a New Layer Add another layer to your design using the same settings as the first layer. Step 7: Add Text Draw the text you want and place it on the new layer. Step 8: Change the Size of the Layer Scale the text layer to 75% of its original size. Step 9: Duplicate the Layer

---

Now duplicate the text layer, and place the new text layer over the existing one. Now, scale the new layer to 70% of the original size. Step 10: Add a Gradient Add a gradient to the duplicate layer.

Step 11: Apply the Gradient to the Background Layer Choose the gradient that you just created and apply it to the new background layer. Step 12:

Duplicate the Background Layer

Duplicate the background layer and change its color to red. Step 13: Create a

The Gradient Tool lets you apply a gradient pattern to an image and use it to add depth and realism to an image. The Gradient Tool is excellent for creating backgrounds and images that have a background look and feel. The Healing Brush allows you to easily repair minor image defects such as dust or scratches. The Lasso Tool allows you to draw a freeform or straight line on an image, and is great for applying image editing effects. Use the Lasso Tool to select parts of an image and copy them to another document, and then paste them into a new image. The Magic Eraser allows you to erase or correct any pixel in an image with no trace of what was originally there. The Paint Bucket allows you to select a color from a palette and copy it to another area of the image. The Paint Bucket is very useful when you want to reproduce a specific color. The Pen Tool lets you draw freeform shapes and then fill them with any color. You can also create guides and then fill or color parts of an image. The Spot Healing Brush is designed to fix small areas of an image that have been damaged. It's fast, accurate and convenient. The Spot Healing Brush works by intelligently "patching" color and texture from the surrounding pixels and uses advanced algorithms to increase the accuracy of its selection. If you don't like the results, you can erase the top layer to start again. The Liquify tool allows you to alter the way an image appears. You can stretch, squash, or warp an image by dragging, or you can move or resize the image by entering specific numbers. You can also change the hue and brightness of an image. You can create the illusion of perspective or change the direction of an object by using the Filter>Blur>Radius of an image. An image filter lets you control the look and feel of an image. Filter options are usually based on color, brightness, or contrast. Many filters also have a variety of adjustment options. The Gradient Tool allows you to apply various gradient effects to an image. You can create a flat color gradient, a linear gradient, a radial gradient, a radial gradient with a center, an angular gradient, a linear gradient that includes a center, or a multidirectional gradient. The Gradient Tool allows you to apply various gradient effects to an image. You can create a flat color gradient, a linear gradient, a radial gradient, a radial gradient with a center, an angular gradient,

Q: Send email in Google Apps Script I need to get my client's consent to use his email accounts for sending email notifications, so I thought it would be great to create a Google Apps Script that would send his notifications using a form on the websites page, where the message would be pre-filled with the desired content. I was trying to use Gmail and get the email body with the sender address and subject from the MIME headers with this script: function EmailMe() { var email = "email@email.com"; var password = "password"; var body = "test message"; var sendApprovalEmail = GmailApp.newSendApprovalEmail(); se

ndApprovalEmail.setDestination(email); sendApprovalEmail.setSubject("test email");
sendApprovalEmail.setBody(body); }

This works fine but the problem is that the script uses the email of the Apps Script itself as sender, so I have to create it once, and then it will be set by the script forever, right? I'm trying to find a solution to that, but I can't find anything. The only thing I can think of right now is to find a way to get the email from the website, and then remove any "From: Your script" part and put my own sender address. Is there a way to do that? A: You should be able to use the `getCurrentUserEmail()` function to get the mail of the current user. Once you get the mail you can use it in your `sendApprovalEmail.setFrom()` function to create a personal send email. You will need to add a user permission as the script you are using is cloud-based.

The study of cancer stem cells (CSC) is in an important stage with the use of cutting-edge techniques such as Fluorescence Activated Cell Sorting (FACS), multilineage reprogramming, and Transplantation of CSCs, among others. The low density, Epithelial-Mesenchymal Transition (EMT) and transdifferentiation are elements that, together with the presence of cancer stem-like cells (CSCs), are the
