Code Saver can display programming code typed by a keyboard. The display includes the base language elements and all referenced source code files. You can edit a source file with your favorite text editor, replace a function with a new one, and display the new results by pressing the "RUN" button. Key Features of Code Saver: 1. Function Calls The first 30 lines of source code display their function call position at the top line of the current code file. The remaining lines of source code may provide additional information regarding the file or line number. The color and font changes with each function call. 2. Language File Extension Support for many different languages is included. Code Saver can display and edit source code in these languages: C, C++, Java, Pascal, Prolog, SQL, C#, ColdFusion, VB, Pascal, Ruby, PHP, Delphi, Visual Basic, and Cobol. 3. Easy to Program With Code Saver's simple text editor works well with any text editor, and has preprogrammed interfaces for several languages.
