Features Key:

21 Classes 21 classes that can be drawn from, as well as a class sprite kit which can be arranged by individual designers.

Minimum BG A simple and effective battle system. While the RPG element allows you to level up your skill points and upgrade your equipment, battles are defined only by the basic stats on which your attacks and magical skills depend.

Boss Battle system Every boss fight is a single battle against an extremely powerful creature. While you battle a boss for the first time, you will have to perform various challenges, and complete a certain number of steps to attain stronger equipment.

Blazingly Ultra HD Graphics Reflect the cutting edge HD gaming technology in this masterpiece by the Glorious Illustrator company.

Collect an extraordinary range of class skills and monsters Collect a wide range of unique class skills and monsters.

Deeds on the wall of the House of Mysteries Each room in the house has a story in which certain deeds are written and a certain announcement is made in order to clear the way. You can begin your adventure to explore the Lands Between with these tales as your guide.

Dynamic and original battle system Each battle is less about attacking and more about moving with the enemies and actively running away. It offers both tactical and relaxing sub systems as you battle with various opponents.

Glorious illustrations The magnificent character and monster illustrations in each room have been selected and arranged by the Glorious Illustrator company from various computer games.

Innovative battle system The battle system allows any of your attacks to perform “guard charge”, “defense parry”, “teleportation”, and “Witchcraft”, as well as combinations involving your movement abilities, to fall upon your enemies, slash them down, and finally change the direction. You can even chain attacks of attack circles to repeat such powerful attacks. Your class skill will be expended, or even disappear completely depending on the number of used attacks.

Multiple Quests By eliminating complications and providing rich rewards, each of the quests will allow the player to enjoy the exciting story. You can choose from within a vast range of quests that entertain you and lead you through a variety of stories within

Q: Super Star Destroyer - fits in the Empire's galaxy-wide military

In the movie Rogue One, Star Wars The Force Awakens, a super star destroyer appears at the end of the movie, because of the need to destroy the Death Star, created by the Galactic Empire, a totalitarian Galactic Empire whose territory extends throughout the galaxy. The hypothesis I have is that this warship was stolen by rebels against the Empire. Does this ship belong to the Galactic Empire or to the rebels? If it belongs to the Empire (because this ship does not appear in the books), are there any information about this ship? For example: its specifications, construction techniques, and/or numbers in service during the Empire's rule in the Galactic Empire's galaxy-wide military. What I have found is this link which for me don't solve my question, because the ship in this link has been built by the rebels for their own purposes.

A: We don't know anything about the battleship in the movie, or the Empire's forces. Ships built for the Galactic Empire do exist, and we can deduce the general specifications from the movies. If you want to see a real life example, the US Navy use the Ticonderoga-class guided missile cruiser. In the movie, the leadership of the Rebel Alliance is in communication with their crews over the ship's intercom, which allows us to know a general understanding of these ships, based on information provided in other works. It turns out, however, that the Rogue One's ship has more in common with the Millennium Falcon than it does with the Ticonderoga-class cruiser. The Falcon is a prototype freighter built for The Rebel Alliance to combat the Empire's blockade (or a portion of the Empire's forces) by smuggling goods and personnel out of the Empire to join their cause in the Battle of Scarif. This ship does not have the kind of vast population of heavy turbolaser batteries or torpedo tubes that you'd expect on a ship of that size, but they do carry heavy turbolaser
