History The station opened on 19 June 1883 under the name "Coxenden Town". It was in the Chatham area and originally served a timber yard, a railway goods shed and the local Workhouse/Grub and Lodging house. The station slowly grew in usage and by 1900 had become a junction station, with the line to Seaford starting service. This additional service was closed in 1897 and the line shut down in 1901. In 1908 the station name was changed to "Coxenden Bay". An up-grading of the line in 1910 allowed this station to become a stopping point, however the line was fully closed on 17 May 1914. During the war around 800 men from the area were killed in the coal mining industry and the line lost further traffic. The line was finally closed to freight and passengers on 24 December 1936 and the station was closed on 24 April 1938. The station was demolished and no evidence now remains of its existence. I know that if I get a blockchain download from someone else it always downloads all the information from each block in my node, including non-existentials. But my own node is fairly new, and I don't want to download the entire blockchain just for the ganache. Is there a way to tell Geth to only download the info that it needs, in a separate.zip? I don't have any data or block indices because I don't have any of those. I would expect to have a block of code and/or data, and no other data or indices, no? I need the whole thing for the data and block indices.
