(Updated 2022)

In Development The gameplay and in-game control are unchanged since FIFA 19. However, there is a new scoring system, a new penalty system, a new FIFA World Cup mode and is the first time in the series to feature improved physics in both on- and off-pitch gameplay. The game also includes improved player animations, including improved face shapes and hair, and some of the biggest head models in the series.

Player Movement The biggest change in the gameplay is the HyperMotion Control System used in the previous games. The movement of the ball and players are no longer predicted. Instead, there is no more “braking” of the ball, as players are treated like faders on a camera lens and can no longer get stuck when their body parts get too close to the ball. This will result in more unpredictable dribbling and passing. This new system is in part due to feedback from the community: “We want to make sure that the flow of the match is more realistic. It makes sense if players in the past games had the tendency to steer the ball with just a flick of the player’s foot. That works in real life football. But the new approach allows us to create more realistic dribbling.” “It was also the subject of a large amount of discussion. We’ve kept the same system as before, but what you’re talking about is a completely different approach.” “I think of them almost as shades in the depth of the image. We’re using a digital camera, so there are shades of grey. And if you then add other shades of grey, you get a black and white image. This is a completely new way of looking at the game, and I would say that we’ve made a huge step in that direction.” “This is something we’ve been working on for a while and it’s become much more noticeable in FIFA 21. We’re almost talking about a completely new way of looking at the game, and we’re talking about a system that’s in the direction of what you're saying." One important aspect is that players' bodies now respond quickly to the contact with the ball. This is also part of our technical goal to bring you a more reactive game experience. Players sprint more and are more balanced in motion

Football (or soccer, as it's otherwise known), is one of the world's favourite sports. FIFA, short for FIFA Interactive Entertainment and based on a playable soccer (football) simulation, is one of the biggest and most popular football game series on the market, with FIFA 17 being the highest selling game of all time. It's also one of the most technically advanced. Not only does it have full motion controls and more accurate physics than ever, but it also incorporates your core gameplay instincts into the game: your emotions will guide you through a match, and then you'll be able to affect the momentum of the game with genuine on-pitch drama. What are the main modes in FIFA? The core game itself consists of a story mode (or Career) plus online and offline modes: Story Mode - Up to 4 player co-op or single player (in single player mode, there's an AI controlled team and you can switch between them in-game). Online - Competitive or casual matches and you can take part in real time or head to head mode. You can also compete in online tournaments or play in the FIFA Ultimate Team (FUT) online store. Offline - Online challenges and tournaments and you can play up to 4 vs 4. In Career mode, you'll spend the game taking control of a single player's journey through the game. As you progress through the game, you'll be able to replay matches, interact with other players and make moves that can affect your career. The ultimate goal of Career mode is to reach the Elite 99 level, which unlocks all of the game's tournaments, online challenges and a new set of stadiums to play in and feel right at home in. What are the controls for FIFA? Keyboard/Gamepad/Console controls You can play FIFA on a range of platforms using a Gamepad or Keyboard and also using a choice of game consoles: You can use a Gamepad or Keyboard. If you use Gamepad, you can plug in a gamepad to a PC using USB and use the PS3 or Xbox 360 gamepad button as a mouse to steer the ball. You can use a Gamepad or Keyboard. If you use Gamepad, you can plug in a gamepad to a PC using USB and use the PS3 or Xbox 360 gamepad button as a mouse to steer the ball. You can use a Controller with the game.
