In essence, the new system detects every movement of the players on the pitch and creates a player's specific characteristics. This allows the AI to learn how they move and play. New graphical settings allow you to increase or decrease the strength of the AI. It's the best of both worlds: more realistic movements but intelligent, comparable to human players. The new HyperMotion Technology will show significant advantages, not only in regards to the new FIFA AI, but also to future FIFA titles. Newball system: An intelligent ball movement FIFA 22 will be the first football game to use a new ball movement system: The Newball. Using the movement of every player on the pitch, the Newball will calculate an optimal movement. The goal is to bring the ball to an optimal position at a certain time to help the team with the ball. In this way, the AI learns much better about it, simulates the positions of individual players and learns individual strengths and weaknesses. This allows the AI to simulate the perfect counterattack from the wings, the individual movements of multiple defenders or forwards, as well as the positions of individual attacking players. It's not only the right position at the right time, but also the action that creates a perfect chance for the attacker. The Newball System allows FIFA to simulate the real physics of the ball and to create realistic patterns of play. Dynamic personality Based on the E-Sports philosophy, FIFA tries to recreate the emotions of the players in the game to make the game more fun. So, from the early days of FIFA, computerized players have always lacked a certain degree of style that humans have. In FIFA 22, the EA SPORTS Team has made an important step in this direction by introducing "Dynamic Personality": Each player is automatically equipped with a set of facial expressions when he is in possession of the ball. This allows for the first time ever in a football game to simulate the decisive moment of the action: the shot. In this way, the player feels more realistic, as well as the reactions of the AI. The whole AI is also more intelligent, the choices are closer to reality and the animations more natural. Outstanding ball physics FIFA 22 introduces "HyperMotion Technology," which captures and analyses data from 22 real-life players to simulate realistic ball movements. The new system detects every movement of the players on the pitch and creates a player's specific characteristics. This allows the AI to learn

The FIFA series of football video games are best known for their in-depth authenticity and incredibly realistic gameplay. FIFA is the biggest and most authentic football video game franchise in the world, offering cutting edge animation, a responsive and responsive tackling engine and unparalleled gameplay features. What is The Will Wright Revolution? The Will Wright Revolution is a brand new gameplay feature where each FIFA game gets an iconic movie director to help create the real world teams, players and stadiums. For the first time in a FIFA game, players get to interact with famous movie directors and cinematographers in real-time through the matchday coaching screen. As well as getting the chance to win special movie-related rewards and challenges, players can even direct a famous cinematographer to recreate some of the most iconic scenes of their favorite films and earn extra-special editions of the game. What is This Year's Focus? This year's FIFA focus focuses on putting the ball at the feet of players by increasing player control and improving the ball physics. As part of the new revolutionary tackling model, players are able to take on and run with other players with greater precision and speed. This is complemented by a new defensive system that features defending AI acceleration and an overall improved defensive behaviour. With goalkeepers poised to adapt to the new challenges of the new game, players will now make their saves with more confidence when coming off their line. What is the New Player Model? The new player model includes high-definition players with updated physiques and animations. An expanded muscle system gives players more power and strength, as well as a greater range of movements. Improved facial expressions make players look more realistic and give them character. Players can now change their style of play within the pitch, and go from zonally dominant to short pass playmaker, or go from a manager with an eye for a ball into the heart of the game. What is the New Club Creation System? The Club Creation System allows players to create a unique team of players and managers. From the diverse group of players and managers available, players can choose their favourite traits - attributes, play styles, traits, attributes and more. A series of customization options for players allow players to make their team fit their style of play, with player kits and player appearance changing as a result of their attributes. Players and managers can be created together in the "Family" mode or individually in the " bc9d6d6daa
