Q: Conversion of ISODate into milliseconds with joda-time I have ISODate like this `dateTimeObj.getInstant().toDate()` How can I convert it into milliseconds? I need it for comparing two dates so I tried this: `DateTime d = new DateTime(dateTimeObj.getInstant()); double diff = d.getMillis() - (new Date()).getTime();` it threw NPE. A: It's not clear from your question why you would want to do this. The Joda-Time API assumes that date-time values will be in UTC. If you want your time to be local time, you can set the time zone to UTC: `DateTime d = new DateTime(dateTimeObj.getInstant().toDate(), DateTimeZone.UTC);` Joda-Time can also compare dates and times at their numeric values, but this comes at the cost of accuracy. If the time values are close enough, it is likely to be faster to compare them numerically. There are other times (not in the API) that can provide millisecond-level accuracy. If, on the other hand, you really want the millisecond precision of Date objects: `new Date(dateTimeObj.getInstant().getMillis())` If you want millisecond-level accuracy for numerical operations: `new BigDecimal(d.getMillis()).longValue()` It has been almost a year since the Bitcoin, or better say, 'virtual currency' was proposed by the mysterious

Play Ballistic Overkill () Ballistic Overkill is a game about a mad bomber and his nuclear arms. The bomber is the player, the weapons - different 'layouts' of his bombs. Thanks to this he can destroy everything! The game is divided into several levels and you have to find the bomb layouts, and destroy them. The levels are designed in such a way, that you die a lot of times, but you will get a lot of hints, so you will be able to continue. There are lots of ways to die, but fortunately - every time you start from scratch. The game has a unique position meter, that allows you to check the percentage of success in the current level. It is the number of completed layouts out of the total number of layouts in the level. The bomber has a number of gadgets that allow you to survive, as well as other gamers: a communication device, an interdimensional portal, and the llama chimp. If you use gadgets or die, the llama chimp will give a hint that helps you to continue. You will be able to obtain all gadgets except the llama chimp, as you will lose all gadgets on the levels, that you have already finished. The game also contains a bonus campaign, which is at the very end of the game, and consists of a few levels. The game is the full game without any unlockable doors. This is the first expansion pack for Ballistic Overkill. New features: - alternate costume for Ballistic Overkill - optional chat mode - New character skin for an adventurer as well as a rebel fighter. - New loot system. - New weapons with additional weapons skins. - New achievement system. - New game mode. - New level. - New note. - New bombtype. - New game position icon. - New.bmp file of the bomber. - Tutorials. - New game music. - Additional hints in the game. - Game statistics. - Game instructor. - New objects for the game. - New skins. - Improved game loading time. - Improved physics. - Improved game sounds. - Improved destructible objects. - Optional chat mode with the basic inspector.
