A fantasy RPG with a large world full of exciting stories. Create and develop your own hero to explore a vast world in the world where the seven gods of the world are not the final arbiters of life. DESIGN: Rise and develop your own hero by choosing from the following six races, including Humans, Elves, Dwarves, Hobbits, Halflings, and Dragons, while waiting in the lands between your soul, where the seven gods are absent. You can freely combine weapons, armor, magic and races. As a bonus, you can develop your own character according to your play style. Through your own adventure, you can explore a vast world with a variety of scenery and experience a new story through a multilayered story in fragments. CUSTOMIZATION: Your own character's appearance can be completely customized through changes to the outfit, customization of the face and hair, and the addition of accessories. Select your weapon and armor, and develop your character's strength through muscle development and mastery of magic. SYSTEM: The game system features a high degree of freedom and customization. Not only do you decide how to develop your character, you can freely change the position of your character, view the surrounding area from behind your character, determine how to get close to enemies and attack, and freely change weapon type. The battle system involves action based on player commands and action prompts. The movements of the character, battles, and combat are not fought automatically, but are decided upon by you. Because battles are set up by your actions, there are large differences between battles. The system facilitates fights while allowing you to feel your own strength.

PLAY MODE: Characters can not only fight through the main story, but also participate in multiplayer, where they can learn skills from a variety of other players in order to explore the open world. You can move freely through the world, and with the support of other players, explore a vast world full of adventures. PLOT: A multilayered story is told in fragments. In the land between the seven gods, a hero awakens from a dormant soul and sets off on an adventure to stop a darkness that threatens the entirety of the world. Your journey will take place on a road through a world full of dangers and a vast countryside, as well as in enormous dungeons. The story involves unexpected plot twists as you develop your adventure. EQUIPMENT

The latest chapter in the trial of former FBI Director James Comey has provided some previously undisclosed details about how the Russia investigation started, including the January 2017 meeting between top FBI officials and an ex-British spy who reported Trump associates were colluding with Russian officials. The ex-spy, ex-MI6 Officer Christopher Steele, met with then-Deputy Attorney General Sally Yates and then-FBI Deputy Director Andrew McCabe on January 6, 2017 at the Justice Department to tell them that Michael Cohen, Trump's personal lawyer at the time, was traveling to Prague to discuss Russian interference in the 2016 U.S.

presidential election with Kremlin officials. The next day, Yates and McCabe both met with Comey, who was unaware of Steele's allegations that Cohen was in Prague to receive information about Trump and Russia. From Yahoo: The meeting on Jan. 6 was not a product of pre-existing investigation, but rather the FBI started the Russia probe days later in July, said Patrick Cotter, one of the FBI agents who interviewed Steele. And from the Washington Post: Steele's information gave the FBI its first confirmed link between Russian meddling and Trump's associates, Cotter said. The bureau had only suspicions, based on news accounts, of possible contacts between people in Trump's orbit and Russians. Among Steele's potential motives was to retaliate against the Trump administration for his firing as an FBI source. On Jan. 10, Comey allegedly told McCabe and then-Associate Deputy Attorney General Bruce Ohr he wanted to meet with Steele because he “had heard credible information from a reliable source that [Steele] may have information relevant to the opening of an investigation into the connection between Russia and individuals associated with the Trump campaign and the Trump — and connected organizations.” Cotter and one of Steele’s other FBI sources, identified as a “female” to the Washington Post, confirmed this meeting on Tuesday when McCabe was interviewed by the DOJ’s Office of the Inspector General. Though the FISA surveillance warrant against Trump campaign adviser
