The aim of this work was to ascertain the number of persons who during a student period made use of drugs addictively in order to obtain a certain effect and to test if this number differed from the official ones. At a drug service in a town in the West part of Germany (Gemeinde Cieszyn) all persons who used drugs addictively during the period 01.01.1985 to 31.12.1987 were investigated. The population group was divided into three groups, in each of which was recorded how much of the total number was a doctor, a medical student or a layperson. In the population group examined by the drug service in Cieszyn at the beginning of the 1990s there were 1,102 subjects who had used drugs addictively during a 2-year period. Among them the number of addicts was determined. Furthermore it was investigated which percentage group of the total number of students came to the drug service. It was found that of all addicts 18% (n = 198) were medical students, and in the population group examined by the drug service there was a drug user for every 23th student. Of the total number of users 40.1% were males, 41.5% females. The highest percentage of student drug users were 25.2% (n = 61) of the medical students, 25.0% (n = 26) of the lay students and 21.7% (n = 20) of the medical students. The student drug user had 17.3% (n = 14) of them aged 18-19 years, 14.0% (n = 11) of them aged 20-21 years, 39.0% (n = 31) aged 22-23 years and 21.7 1cdb36666d
