Field of the Invention This invention relates to a solid-state image sensor having amplification means for amplifying the signal representing the image formed on the surface of a solid-state image pickup device. 2. Description of the Related Art A signal pickup circuit which amplifies a signal representing an image formed on the surface of a solid-state image pickup device to output it has been used in digital still cameras and video cameras. The conventional signal pickup circuit is described in, for example, Japanese Unexamined Patent Publication No. 8(1996)-139584. A structure of a conventional signal pickup circuit is shown in FIG. 5. In FIG. 5, a pin 21 is an input terminal to which a high-frequency-wave signal, which is obtained by picking up an image formed on the surface of a solid-state image pickup device, is applied. This signal is further applied to an amplifier 22. An amplifier 22 outputs the amplified signal to a programmable delay circuit 24 and a variable delay circuit 25. The programmable delay circuit 24 is connected to another input terminal via a switch 26. The input terminal to 6d1f23a050
