The latest one is the fact that US owners are dealing with fender replacements because the larger wheels are lifting the fenders. Now BMW has issued a recall notice for the issue and the manufacturer is offering a good warranty to the customer whose car is affected. So this is very good news indeed. I have a 2009 model in that has had the wheel lift issue and can't remember it ever lifting the fenders, so I assume it's a new problem that's been started by the larger wheels.
