The challenge is that the SP does not have any output parameters, so I need to perform validation on all input parameters. What I've tried: Checking whether all the input parameters are set (they're all nullable) Using a SELECT query to get a list of the input parameters and echo the parameters to the screen to visually check the values Outputting the parameters via the command line (using echo?fmt=xml?) This is the only solution I've found that isn't exactly right. While this would be great, if I could add validation to the stored procedure by doing a SELECT query, that would be an even better option. A: My answer: Using INFORMATION_SCHEMA First, I would recommend reading: 6d1f23a050
