Hydrogen efflux from rat brain cortex slices into media containing 2-deoxy-D-glucose and [14C]deoxyglucose was used to measure the effects of dehydroepiandrosterone sulfate (DHEA-S) on cerebral blood vessels. Effects of DHEA-S on blood flow (BF) and brain glucose metabolism in vivo were also examined using [14C]deoxyglucose as a radio tracer. DHEA-S (100 micrograms/mouse) induced a slight increase in BF after i.p. administration, while BF was decreased after s.c. administration in a dose-dependent manner. The i.p. administration of DHEA-S (200 micrograms/mouse) induced a decrease in BF and an increase in glucose metabolism in the pons. BF tended to be decreased after s.c. administration. The level of glucose metabolism in the pons was increased. An increase in glucose metabolism was not observed in the hypothalamus. DHEA-S did not induce any significant change in motor function and hyperglycemia. DHEA-S did not change the blood pressure. DHEA-S at a dose of 100 micrograms/mouse increased food and water intake. The present invention relates to a disk cassette for accommodating a disk such as an optical disk, a magneto-optical disk, and an optical card. A disk cassette (magnetic disk cassette) for accommodating a magnetic disk used as a recording medium for an audio signal and/or a video signal is manufactured post: [ explor...]( adevelopers-eye-view.aspx) "The only known bug in IE9 is that XUL controls will not fire their events properly in the XUL test pages in this blog entry. This is because IE9 has newly introduced a change for XUL to use new classes and methods. I have moved my IE9 test pages onto a new server and included a separate class/method call file (IE9Runner.js) that uses EXACTLY the same code as the old method, and the events fire perfectly fine on the new server. I will re-post the new IE9 test pages in a few days, once the bugs have been worked out. ---paul From the discussion: [ "I'll make a note to take a look at these.... btw, we're doing some stuff internally
