During the past decade, subcutaneous port-a-caths have become popular and have replaced the Hickman-type central venous catheters as the primary vascular access device for patients on chronic peritoneal dialysis. The subcutaneous port-a-cath is associated with a lower risk of central vein catheter-related infection when compared to the Hickman-type central venous catheter. However, there are concerns about the potential for port-a-cath-associated thrombosis. We report a case of late diagnosis of a symptomatic port-a-cath-associated deep vein thrombosis in a peritoneal dialysis patient. Because of the increased risk of associated complications, it is important for practitioners to be aware of the possible complications of the port-a-cath and to monitor patients for any signs and symptoms of a port-a-cath-associated thrombosis.. Ceeb: Also, if you log in to your Amazon account and select your Prime membership, your membership date is shown by clicking "My Account". Add me to your speed reading list as well. I noticed you did some research on this and I would love to hear from you how you worked your speed reading into your schedule. I am always questioning myself and my ability to sit back and read when I find those opportunities, but I am willing to learn from the best in the biz. I don't feel like I've missed out on anything. I won't be getting Fastscript for a couple months and then probably not. It's great that you did the research on Amazon's interface for the two major ereader apps. Rachel from Kindle Nation Most people never do more than 5 minutes on their Kindle. I read for many hours every day. There are probably lots of people who do speed reading on their Kindle. If you are one of them, and if you have a Kindle DX, I'd love to hear how you did it.The Department of Homeland Security has made a substantial investment in the most effective screening technology available for the control of entry into the United States. This technology is able to rapidly detect high-risk individuals at foreign airports by using biometric data to confirm, among other
