This software allows you to connect to the Skopedia database via ODBC and allows you to use the content using the software. You can download the most recent versions of Skopedia from their website: ODS.NET support Hi,It should work with the web server, RepX.Cheers,Florian--- Florian Horsch floria...googlemail.com Find me on home.pages.de/~dfh and forum.reprap.org .--Posted via a mobile device -- don't try to reply - your mail will be lost.Your email address will not be published. I'm sorry you are having trouble. This software should be good for the standard network connection you have. The web server, RepX, is what you are seeing on the website. You can adjust the set-up: Open Start (or right-click and select Open) to open the Control Panel Go to the Networking tab Select VPN from the drop down box Click the arrow next to the VPN option Select Options Click the arrow next to the Default VPN option Double click on your default VPN service Hit the Apply button Click the arrow next to the Use my default VPN option Click the arrow next to the Apply button Hit the Apply button In an attempt to get Netfab and RepX to work together. I do not have the AutoCAD 3D WiFi Netfab bundle with the RepX Live server I have instead the Netfab bundle and the standalone RepX Live server. The first issue I am aware of in Netfab 3D model viewing is that once a model is in Netfabb and placed in Repx, it is no longer in viewable in Netfab unless Repx is reloaded. That is a known bug in Netfab that has to be worked around in some way. So far the best way I know how to do that is to save the Netfab to a.x3db file and then load that into Repx then move the model back to Netfab. To do that you will have to set Netfab to Open and have the file path to the.x3db file open in the box for URL - as shown in the following images. 5ec8ef588b
