Sunday, August 17, 2008 Todd Bodine is the first driver of the No. 12 Budweiser Dodge Charger Fusion to win a Sprint Cup Series race since Lee Petty in 1956. It was the first time in Sprint Cup history that three drivers have won all three Daytona races. The top finishers are history. Terry Labonte, Mark Martin and Juan Pablo Montoya are the first three drivers of the No. 99 Ford to finish 1-2-3 at the Speedway. Montoya comes close to a career-high 11th career Sprint Cup series victory. Jeff Gordon is in second place for the third straight Daytona race and leads the point standings by a point over Jimmie Johnson. Matt Kenseth trails Johnson by 30 points. Gordon and Kenseth are battling for the driver's championship. But this is more about the race at Richmond than the end of the season. Gordon will not be allowed to take the title until he wins at Richmond. In front of the yellow flag for the fourth straight time, Johnny Sauter is high on the inside of Martin Truex Jr. He is closing on Martin. Sauter got his tail out of the way when the caution came out. NASCAR officials have made it clear that after the close calls at Daytona, Phoenix and Pocono in three straight weekends, they want to bring the action to a halt until the season ends at Richmond in two weeks. Officials will announce new series rules later this week. An important change will be new guidelines on pit stops. One of the most common criticisms of NASCAR is the lack of clean racing. The rule book is so confusing and the penalties so harsh, it doesn't help. The only positive NASCAR has had all weekend is thunderstorms. Otherwise the track has been so slick it's been tough to pass. There is no real "driver's style" at Daytona. 5ec8ef58b
