And with that comes the pain of having to 'say sorry'. What is the best way to say Sorry? Sometimes people let things hurt them longer than they should because they feel that they have to say sorry, feel they owe you an apology or do something to make you appreciate them and forgive them when they know they never really meant to hurt you. The only thing you can do in such a situation is let go and move on. Sometimes, they already know that they have hurt you and they want to say sorry in a way that you will be able to understand. This is how they are going to express it. Most people also tend to apologise when they feel regret. This may be because they feel that they should have known better, they shouldn't have behaved like this or they feel guilty for what they have done. So what is the best way to say Sorry? That's the point where you know that you have to move on and forget about the past. But what if you feel that you have really done something wrong, you really have to say sorry? Well, you can do so by... 1. Apologising to the person This is the best way to say sorry. You can be honest with the person. This way, you can make things right and also learn from the mistakes you have made. It's the only way to prevent you from making the same mistake over and over again. So make sure you apologise and tell the person what you did or said, how you regret it and what you will do
