A number of programs has been very helpful in managing all the contacts. But if you have too many contacts, if you forget the number of your colleagues, if you have a lot of repeated calls, even a very simple contact program will be not enough for you. I had that experience and I made such a personal solution. I made a program that allows you not only to keep your contacts but to work them with a call center mode. You can input into the database any (!) number of the description fields, from name of your pet to your boss car mark. But for all that you might fill only those specific fields in every record, which are really necessary. Furthermore the application allows you to keep the detail phone call history, dial phone numbers directly from the program using a modem, lunch of browser or email to a contact's site. KeyMacro is a simple to use but powerful macro program. KeyMacro allows you to create a macro recording of any combination of keystrokes. You can use your own recording or record the actual keystrokes on your PC. You can create a macro from keystrokes or record a macro from keystrokes. It's as easy as creating a new file. KeyMacro is the first program of its kind that can do both. Even though this sounds like an obvious feature, the options available in KeyMacro are powerful and versatile. • Once a macro has been recorded it can be played repeatedly with the built-in recorder. • Every keystroke you make will be recorded. • You can modify your macro, which will be saved and played iReferent Light is an easy-to-use Contact Manager for small business and home users that organizes your personal call center to work in "hot" mode (while speaking) and keeps track of your contacts with this customizable data warehouse. It has the unique database structure. Usually the similar programs have only strictly fixed (structured) numbers of fields, e.g.: a phone numbers, an address, an e-mail and etc. As a rule it is either not enough for users (if a program is too small and simple) or they are not used completely (if an application is too big and complicated). iReferent Light is fully saved from this disadvantage. You can input into the database any (!) number of the description fields, from name of your pet to your boss car mark. But for all that you might fill only those specific fields in every record, which are really necessary. Also the application allows you to keep the detail phone call history, dial phone numbers directly from the program using a modem, lunch of browser or email to a contact's site. With Data Wizard you can print data from your database or/and to save them as a text csv-format file Requirements: ⬜ Pentium(tm)-based IBM PC compatible computer (or higher). ⬜ About 4 MB of free disk space. ⬜ A mouse. ⬜ A color monitor with a VGA card (800x600 screen resolution and 16-bit color mode or better is recommended). Limitations: ⬜ 30 days trial So, if you've got the rest of the features, I'd definitely go for it. A: I really have no idea what this product does. However, it sounds like a great service to small businesses. Given that you were looking for some advice, I think it's an excellent opportunity. You would contact a telemarketing company and sign up to have them market your product to prospective customers. You would be able to track how many customers they brought to you and by how much. Once you have a good idea about what the cost of signing up is, you would then decide how much product to put on your site. It will take some time for you to develop your marketing plan, and then the website, and then get customers. If you decide to not sell, you don't have to pay for anything. You can just enjoy the profits of your hard work future.New York police have been accused of sexually assaulting two black women on a Brooklyn street corner – as they reportedly documented the moment on their mobile phones. A group of men, allegedly in their 20s, sexually assaulted the two women as they walked along Nostrand Avenue near the nearby Nostrand Park about 7.45pm on Tuesday, The New York

Post reported. "All of a sudden they were all over me," one of the women said. "And then the other one said, 'Oh my God, he just raped me!'" The victim told the newspaper that the alleged attack was caught on video, with a group of men seen looking on before filming the scene with their phones. But the women allege that police then showed up at the scene and told them that the video was taken by a "street vendor" and showed nothing. The women then walked to the 71st Precinct, where they showed the video and described the scene to police. But when an NYPD spokesperson watched the footage, he "determined that the incident was not sexually
